London physicians tell us that shocks will kill bacteria. This may reconcile us somewhat to earthquakes, Mount Pelee eruptions &c.

Truth may be "at the bottom of a well," but with some Republican editors, judging from the small quantity they use, it must be at the bottom of the ocean.

A Geneva dispatch says there is a great demand from all parts of Europe for pictures of the eloping Princess Louise, of Saxony. They want to see what the royal freak looks like.

Senator Morgan commented very sharply the other day about "leaks" in executive sessions of the Senate, and yet he would probably have been much disappointed if some of those leaks hadn't got into print.

A New York Republican paper has an editorial on "the way to beat Addicks," who is running for the U. S. Senate from Delaware. The way to beat Addicks in that bailiwick is to distribute more money than he does.

Whether the world is getting better or not there were 1,261 churches added last year to the number already built in this country, an increase of 720 in the number of clergymen and 403,743 in the number of communicants.

A Southern California man who started a pigeon ranch a few years ago with 400 birds, now has 12,000, and is making money by selling the squabs, for which he gets a couple dollars a dozen. He draws the color line and raises only white birds.

The wireless telegraphy people seem to be getting down to business. A company has been organized and will soon be sending messages from San Francisco or Seattle to Honolulu. It has had dynamos constructed powerful enough to send messages 3,000 miles.

Mr. Oliver Harriman, of Port Chester, N. Y., who has managed to accumulate a $15,000,000 fortune, does not seem to be able to take care of it and his friends are asking the courts to appoint persons to take charge of it. In the long run they will probably get more out of it than he will.

The New York Sun believes that Senator Morgan could talk thirteen hours consecutively, but doubts his ability to hold out for thirteen days. The Sun doesn't know Senator Morgan. If the gentleman from Alabama became really aroused he could wind up his talk apparatus and talk for thirteen weeks.

TEACHERS IN JUNE.

North Carolina Assembly Will Meet at Wrightsville Beach Again This Year.

THE STATE'S EDUCATORS.

Letter Containing Definite Announcement Received Yesterday from Prof. W. D. Carmichael, of Durham—Visitors to Be Entertained.

The twentieth annual meeting of the North Carolina Teachers' Assembly will be held at Wrightsville beach in June. The announcement is authoritative, a letter having been received to that effect yesterday by President Chadbourn, of the Chamber of Commerce, from Prof. W. D. Carmichael, secretary and treasurer of the Assembly, and the STAR is sure that the news will be received with great delight by the people of Wilmington. The Assembly met here year before last and was entertained in royal manner by the Seashore Hotel. The same will be true of the meeting again this season. Over five hundred teachers and their friends will be present. The railroads will offer the usual reduced rates.

Dr. F. P. Venable, of the University, is president and Prof. J. B. Carlyle, of Wake Forest, is vice president of the organization. The letter from Secretary and Treasurer Carmichael is as follows:

"DURHAM, N. C., Feb. 19th.

"Mr. Jas. H. Chadbourn, Wilmington, N C.

"MY DEAR SIR:—Your letter of the 18th inst. has been received. I thank you very much for the kind offer from you for the Chamber of Commerce. We have decided, I am personally very glad to say, that we shall meet in Wilmington this year. I am sure that this will be a great year for the Assembly, and the fact that we meet on Wrightsville will be greatly to our advantage.

"Thanking you again for your kindness, I am, Very truly yours,

"W. D. CARMICHAEL."

THE COUNTY SCHOOLS

Entertainment and Public Debate in East Wilmington on Friday Afternoon.

THE TEACHERS' ASSOCIATION.

Next Regular Meeting Will Be Held Saturday—Several Interesting Addresses on Programme—Personal Recollections of Fort Fisher.

A most creditable public entertainment and debate was given Friday afternoon at the East Wilmington public school, Prof. S. V. Bowen, principal. The attendance was unusually large, many persons having gone out from the city and the patrons and friends of the school having attended almost en masse and thoroughly enjoyed every feature of the programe, which consisted of music, recitations and the like, closing with a spirited debate.

Prof. D. M. Bain, teacher of vocal music in the rural schools, was present and the singing of the children gave evidence of efficient work on his part. Mr. Lovie Mills was organist. The programme was as follows:

Song: "Singing Gally Singing."
"What We Learn at School," by five children.
"Papa's Little Girl" by Mollie Potter.
"Sensible" by Lila Blake.
Song, "Merrily Sing."
"How Do I Look" by Lila Kline.
Speech, by Allen Blake.
"Lazy Little Low" by Harry Webb.
"What a Small Boy Can Do" Tommie Blake.
Song: "Birds are Singing."
"St. Valentine's Day Among the Birds" by Fannie Riggs.
"What Would You Think?" by Annie M. Blake.
"Never Out of Sight" by Bessie Edens.
"Diffidence" by Annie Webb.
Charlie's Speech" by Dinnor Padrick.
Song: "School Boy Days."

The debate was upon the query: "Which is More Desirable, Country Life or City Life?" Affirmative: Victor Pearsall, Esther Klein, Willie Webb, Mary Webb, Mary Riggs, Lovie Mills. Negative: Bessie Mills, Lila Blake, Oscar Pearsall, Jr., Jerry Blake, Annie Webb.

The judges appointed to decide were Superintendent W. Catlett, Messrs. W. M. Cumming and M. N. Northam.

Mr. Cumming delivered the decision of the judges. Both affirmative and negative presented their respective sides so well that it was impossible for the judges to say which had won. Mr. Cumming made a neat little speech complimenting the school and its enterprising teacher. Superintendent Catlett and Mr. Oscar Pearsall, one of the committeemen, also made congratulatory addresses.

Teachers' Association Meeting.

The New Hanover County Teachers' Association will meet next Saturday morning at 10 o'clock in the Cape Fear Academy building, next south of the Court House, on Third street. Teachers in the city white public schools are cordially invited to attend and participate in the exercises. The features of the programme will be as follows:

Bombardment of Fort Fisher, (Personal Experience), Rev. J. A. Smith.
The Best Method of Teaching Literature, Miss Pattie D. Thorne.
The Bible in the Public School, Dr. Calvin S. Blackwell.

THE RIDGEWAY CONCERT COMPANY.

Sixth Entertainment in Star Course at the Y. M. C. A. Tuesday Evening.

The Findlay, Ohio, Morning Republican, of Jan. 31st, has the following to say of the Ridgeway Concert Company which will appear as the sixth entertainment in the Star Course Tuesday evening in the Y. M. C. A. auditorium:

"Without a peer. That is the best criticism that can be made of Katharine Ridgeway. In her recital last night at the Marvin she completely captured the audience which went into ecstacies in their appreciation. * * * * One could write columns on her work and then not say too much in praise of her. Suffice it to say once again, that she stands undisputedly without a peer."

Reserved seats can be had at DeRosset's. General admission and reserved seats, seventy-five cents.

Commerce Chamber a Model.

Mr. R C. Foster, president and general manager of the Georgia Car and Manufacturing Co., of Savannah, spent yesterday in the city as the special representative of the business men of his city, who desire information regarding the practical workings of a live Chamber of Commerce, with a view of establishing a body of that character in their midst. Savannah has a Board of Trade and a Cotton Exchange, but Mr. Foster says they do not meet all the requirements. He said he had heard of Wilmington's Chamber, and came here first to get the desired information because he regarded the organization here up-to-date. Later he will visit Knoxville and Atlanta.

Trolley Car Schedule.

The regular schedule of the Consolidated Railways, Light and Power Co. may be found in another column. In addition to the regular schedule there is an extra service on pleasant days to Wrightsville Beach.

I. Shrier was never so busy as now taking orders for made-to-measure garments. You should have him show you his immense line of 3,000 Samples. He is making suits to order from $12.00 to $40.00; Coat and Trousers from $10.00 to $25.00, and Trousers from $3.00 to $9.00. Fit Guaranteed. †

REV. BENJ. R. HALL DEAD.

Leading Methodist Preacher, Once Pastor Here, Died Friday Night at Fayetteville—Funeral To-day.

Friends in this city—and they are numbered by the score—will hear with deep regret of the death of Rev. B. R. Hall, presiding elder of the Fayetteville District M. E. church, South, which occurred at the Marsh-Highsmith Hospital at Fayetteville Friday evening at 7:10 o'clock. Rev. Mr. Hall was stricken with apoplexy Friday morning at 4 o'clock and he never regained consciousness lost at that hour.

At the request of the deceased before his death, the remains were taken to the Hay Street Methodist church in Fayetteville where they will remain until this afternoon at 3 o'clock when the funeral will be conducted by Rev. T. A. Smoot.

Rev. B. R. Hall was in the 52nd year of his age, having been born Sept. 25th 1851. His parents, Henry G. and Mrs. Emily B. Hall, are still living and make their home at Shelby, N. C. His is the first death in the family. Mr. Hall was married in 1876 to Miss Fannie Stedman, who, with four children, survive him. He also leaves three brothers and a sister to mourn their loss, as follows: Mr. Edward Hale Hall, of Waco, Texas; Mr. Heman R. Hall, of Fayetteville; Rev. John H. Hall, of Rockingham, and Mrs. C. P. Roberts, of Shelby; Rev. John H. Hall, who has just retired as pastor of Fifth street M. E. church, this city. His aged mother and his sister, Mrs. Roberts, expected to reach Fayetteville last night.

Deceased has been a presiding elder in the North Carolina Conference for eight years, and for the past three years had been on the Fayetteville District. At one time he was pastor of Wilmington Fifth Street M. E. church and was universally esteemed here. He joined the conference in 1875 and has never since that time missed an annual session of that body. He was a graduate of Trinity College and a preacher of great ability, having served some of the most important stations in his church, Trinity church, Durham, St. Paul's, Goldsboro, being among the number of leading charges he served.

Golf Tournament Postponed.

The ladies' handicap golf tournament scheduled for yesterday afternoon was postponed on account of the weather. The annual mixed foursome tournament will be played on the links Monday afternoon, commencing promptly at 3 o'clock. Nine holes will be played.

Carolina Central Delay.

A box car of a freight train jumped the track near Old Hundred, yesterday, causing a five-hour delay of the passenger train due to arrive here from Hamlet over the Seaboard Air Line at 12:05 o'clock in the afternoon.

GENERAL ASSEMBLY.

Consideration of London Bill in the Senate Deferred Until Monday Morning.

THE WATTS' BILL SENT UP.

Revenue Act is Being Discussed in the House—Bond Issue Must Be from $400,000 to $500,000—Local Bills as to Eastern Carolina.

[Special Star Telegram.]

Raleigh, N. C., Feb. 21.—Senator London made a motion in the Senate this morning that further consideration of the London bill be deferred until Monday at 11 o'clock and that a final vote on the measure be taken at noon, Tuesday. The motion was adopted. This was in order that time could be gained to clear the calendar of accumulated bills to which to day's session was devoted.

A great number of local bills passed. One of general importance was to empower the N. C. Corporation Commission to hear complaints of demurrage charges by shippers against the railroads.

The Watts bill came over from the House and was referred to the Committee on Propositions and Grievances. Three hundred copies were ordered printed.

The House spent a good portion of to day's session in committee of the whole, considering the Revenue bill. Discussion of the first section brought out the statement from Doughton, the introducer of the bill, that the estimated additional revenue would be $159,000.

The first section defining the objects of taxation was adopted. During the discussion of the second and third sections, Graham said much property is escaping taxation. Thirty-three counties show no revenue from cigarettes; fifty-eight no tax on horse dealers and sixty-one no tax on pistol dealers. He insisted on taxing gross earnings of railroads and increasing the valuation from $42 000,000 to $107,000,000.

Sections 2 and 3 of the Revenue Bill were adopted without change. This provides $1.29 poll tax; an ad valorem tax of 21 cents for the State; 4 cents for pensions and 18 cents for schools, making 43 cents on the $100 valuation.

Further consideration of the Revenue Bill was deferred until Monday at 3 P. M.

Incidentally there was a discussion of the necessity of a bond issue, the concensus of opinion being that provision must be made for from $400,000 to $500,000 in bonds.

Notable bills introduced in the House were by Abell to prohibit the manufacture and sale of adulterated illuminating oil; Carlton, to amend charter of Rose Hill; Carlton, to incorporate the Elizabeth City Through Line Railroad Co.; Carlton, to incorporate the Bank of Warsaw, and Willis, to incorporate the Brothers' and Sisters' Union, of Bladen county.

A brief session of the House was held to-night for passage of local bills exclusively. Hon. R. A. Doughton, presided and put through fifty bills. Those of interest in East Carolina were to create a new school district from portions of Cumberland and Robeson counties; for the drainage of roads in Robeson county; to sell the oyster steamer Lily and regarding witness fees in Cumberland county.

Meeting of Wood Workers.

There was a large attendance last night upon the mass meeting of white wood workers of the city in Pythian Castle Hall, in the Murchison National Bank building. President Smith, of Local Union 899, Carpenters and Joiners' of America, presided and the chief speaker of the evening was General Organizer J. P. Ogletree, of Birmingham, Ala., who has spent the past ten days in Wilmington. Other speeches were made by President Smith, Mr. David Rountree, Mr. G. F. Quinn and others. As a result of the meeting a new local union was organized, the number of which will not be known until the charter is issued. General Organizer Ogletree leaves this afternoon for Charleston but will return in time to address the wood workers again on Thursday night.

The Steamboat Merger.

Mr. A. A. Lisman, president of the Wilmington and Fayetteville Steamboat Co., who was in the city yesterday, confirmed the report printed in the STAR from the Fayetteville Observer that his company had withdrawn from the traffic agreement recently formed by the steamboat companies operating on the upper Cape Fear. Mr. Lisman says the City of Fayetteville is withdrawn because he thinks more money can be made by her independently. Mr. Lisman left on the steamer for Fayetteville at 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon.

Compliment to Wilmington Firm.

Goldsboro Argus: "Thus far this week Messrs. Best & Thompson have bought 980 bales of cotton for Messrs. Alexander Sprunt & Son, the noted cotton exporters of Wilmington, who have for years been a vital energy of incalculable benefit to the cotton farmers of North Carolina—not only as purchasers of the fleecy staple at the highest market price, but also as intelligent, vigilant and fearless champions of the farmers best interests in promptly and persistently fighting the insidious round bale trust."

At the Postoffice Monday.

Washington's birthday falling on Sunday, the postoffice will observe holiday hours Monday as follows: General delivery and stamp windows open from 9 to 10 A. M. and 6 to 4 P. M. Registry department open from 9 to 10 A. M. Money order department closed all day. Carriers will make one delivery and collection in the morning.

TRAGEDY IN RALEIGH

Ludlow Skinner Shot to Death by Ernest Haywood, a Prominent Lawyer.

SPECULATION AS TO CAUSE.

Domestic Troubles Thought to Have Been at Bottom of the Affair—Genuine Sensation Created — Insanity May Be Pleaded at Trial.

[Special Star Telegram.]

Raleigh, N. C. Feb. 21—Earnest Haywood, one of the best known lawyers of Raleigh, shot and instantly killed Ludlow Skinner, of the firm of Johnson, Thompson & Co., cotton brokers, this afternoon about 4 o'clock. Both are of social and business prominence. Haywood gave himself up after the shooting but refuses to make any statement and having waived examination was committed to jail without bail.

The two men were seen at the postoffice entrance in earnest conversation a few minutes before the shooting. Skinner had turned away and was moving toward the street ten paces away when Haywood fired the first shot. Skinner quickened his pace as though trying to get away when Haywood fired a second shot within probably fifteen seconds of the first, the ball taking effect just back of the left arm and penetrating the heart.

The assertion that Skinner was shot in the back, aggravated the feeling against Haywood among Skinner's friends and there was talk of violence and while there is no guard at the jail to-night a sharp look out is being kept to prevent any demonstration.

Raleigh never experienced so severe a shock as the killing has created, and the town is rift with supposed explanations as to the cause. It is conceded that complications between the families of the two men are at the bottom of it. It has been common report going for some months that Haywood and Mrs. Gertrude Winder Tucker, widow of the late Wm. R. Tucker and sister-in-law of Skinner, were secretly married in New York several months ago. This he denied. Mrs. Tucker was treated in a Baltimore hospital recently and it is out of these conditions that the shooting has grown, though there can be no comprehensive statement of the case until developed in the trial.

Dr. T. E. Skinner, the venerable retired pastor of the First Baptist church and father of the murdered man, declared this evening that Haywood had written an insulting letter to his son's wife. Mrs. Skinner said, when told that her husband was shot, that she tried to keep him from going down after dinner, and telephoned to Johnson & Thompson's office for him to keep off the street.

These statements, than which there is nothing more definite, now indicate that there was an old and bitter score between the two men to be settled.

The coroner held an inquest and autopsy to-night, finding that the deceased came to his death at the hands of Haywood. It is understood insanity will be pleaded.

Jas. H. Pou and T. M. Argo, the best lawyers here, have been engaged for the defence. Haywood has a brother in the insane asylum.

(By Associated Press.)

Charlotte, N. C., Feb. 21.—A special to the Observer from Raleigh says: The greatest social and criminal sensation Raleigh has ever known developed at 4:30 o'clock this afternoon when, on Fayetteville street, Ernest Haywood shot and killed Ludlow Skinner. The prominence of both families is marked. Haywood is a grand son of the late State Treasurer John Haywood and son of the late Dr. E. Burke Haywood, and one of Raleigh's leading lawyers. Skinner was a grand-son of the late Mr. Ludlow, of New York, and a son of Rev. Dr. Thomas E. Skinner, of Raleigh, one of the best known Baptists in the South.

At least a hundred persons must have seen the shooting, certainly that number saw the victim of Haywood's revolver as he reeled and fell upon his face on the car track in front of the postoffice and Yarborough House and not forty yards from the court house.

Hayward was taken by Deputy Sheriff Separk to Haywood's law office, and was there for about two hours guarded by deputies and in conference with his attorneys, James H. Pou and Argo & Shaffer. Later he was taken to the court house, where Magistrate Marcom had a preliminary hearing, taking only Separk's testimony upon which he committed Haywood to jail without bail for murder.

Skinner's wife is a daughter of the late Major John C. Winder. The rumor here is that the tragedy grew out of a reported secret marriage in the family of one of the men concerned.

Raleigh, N. C. Feb. 21.—Haywood, who is now in jail has as yet made no statement. The testimony at the preliminary hearing before Justice J. C. Marcom this afternoon is as follows:

Earlier in the day Skinner called at Haywood's office. What occurred there is not known. When he came out he started for the postoffice. In the mean time Haywood went to the court house. As he returned and was near the middle steps of the postoffice, he saw Skinner on the sidewalk, and called him, saying: "Ludlow come here, I want to speak to you."

As Skinner approached, Haywood fired point blank at him. He missed, and Skinner turned and ran. When he reached the car track Haywood fired again, and Skinner stumbled for a second and sank to the ground. He was taken into Jas. I. Johnson's drug store in an unconscious condition and died within a few minutes. Later the body was removed to his home. The wife of Mr. Skinner is prostrated with grief.

FEDERAL POINT FENCE LAW.

Full Text of Bill Exempting a Portion of New Hanover from Stock Regulation—Township Tax.

Below will be found the full text of the bill recently passed by the General Assembly, repealing the no-fence law as applied to Federal Point township, this county:

An act to repeal the stock law in Federal Point Township in New Hanover county:

The General Assembly of North Carolina do enact:

Section 1. That from and after June 1st, 1903, chapter 290 of the Public Laws of 1899 shall not apply to that portion of New Hanover county south and west of a line starting at a point on the Cape Fear river where the water course from McIlhenny's mill pond empties into said river, and running with the stream and mill pond to the head of clay bottom and running behind W. P. Oldham's fence southeast to the old Federal Point road, running thence west side of said road to the sound road, running thence west side of the sound road to George Roger's Lane; down said lane to the sound and also including that portion of the beach south of a pond opposite where this line touches the sound.

Sec. 2. That before May 15th, 1903, the Board of Commissioners of said county shall cause a good and sufficient fence five feet high to be constructed and maintained along the boundary line above mentioned, with suitable gates at all crossings of public roads and other places where necessary; Provided, that the said Board of Commissioners may at any time and from time to time declare any water course along the line of said fence to be and constitute a part of said fence; Provided further, that the Commissioners may have the right, if in their judgment it is necessary, to run this fence a little south of the point where it touches the sound in order to touch the sound at a deep water point, and for the purpose of this act the said Board of Commissioners may let out the construction of said fence and gates by contract to the lowest responsible bidder, giving twenty days' of such letting out by public advertisement in at least two daily papers published in the city of Wilmington, or in their discretion the said board shall deem it advisable, that they may employ an agent to construct said fence under such terms as they shall prescribe; and for defraying the expenses of constructing said fence and gates the said board may draw upon the county treasurer of said county of New Hanover for a sum sufficient therefor out of the general fund of said county; and may thereafter levy on all real property, taxable by State and county in said territory so fenced out, and collect a tax sufficient to replace the amount so drawn from the said general fund, and in addition thereto may from year to year in like manner levy and collect a tax sufficient to maintain said fence and gates.

Sec. 3.—That all laws and clauses of laws conflicting with this act are hereby repealed.

Sec. 4.—This Act shall be in force from and after its ratification.

EASTERN CAROLINA DIOCESE.

Standing Committee Held Session in Wilmington and Considered Bishop's Enfeebled Condition.

The Standing Committee of the Episcopal Diocese of East Carolina met in this city Friday as advisory counsel to the Rt. Rev. Bishop A. A. Watson in view of the enfeebled condition of his health. The action taken at the meeting is set forth in the following resolution furnished for publication by the secretary:

Diocese of East Carolina,
Wilmington, N. C., Feb. 14th, 1903.

At a meeting of the Standing Committee, held as above, the following resolution was passed unanimously:

"Resolved, That the committee advises the Bishop that they deem it unnecessary to take any steps looking to the transference of the Diocesan affairs into the hands of the Standing Committee. And they advise that the Bishop, through the secretary of this committee, and at the expense of the Diocese, procure the assistance of his brother bishops to perform such Episcopal acts as may be thought necessary or pressing.

"The Committee are satisfied that the interests of the Diocese are in no danger of suffering by postponing any further steps until the meeting of the Annual Council, when the Bishop may take such action as to him may seem best.

"And, the Committee emphatically and affectionately insist that the Bishop owes it to himself, to the Church which he has served so long and faithfully, and whose children are so anxiously interested in his condition, that he shall, until the time indicated, religiously abstain from all mental and physical exertion in regard to the Diocese.

[Teste.] "W. L. DeRosset,
"Secretary."

WILMINGTON, N. C.

SUNDAY MORNING, FEBRUARY 22.

CLAP TRAP AND STAGE THUNDER.

A few days ago we published from the New York Sun an editorial congratulating President Roosevelt on his failure to carry his anti-trust programme through Congress. It pronounced his surrender to the trusts the "greatest service he had ever rendered his country." The Sun, which shines for the trusts, was talking from trust standpoint; and while its congratulations to Mr. Roosevelt were of an ironical character, they expressed the sentiments of the people who are opposed to anti-trust legislation. The Sun was one of the very few Republican organs which had the courage to oppose that kind of legislation to which most of the leaders, including Roosevelt, had committed themselves and pledged themselves in the campaign last Fall. It regarded those ante-election pledges as demagogic and when Mr. Roosevelt declared that they should be carried out he denounced his utterances as demagogic and revolutionary, as attacks on the constitution of the United States and on the rights of men who chose to put their money together to do business in a corporate capacity. But Mr. Roosevelt at the eleventh hour changed his views, modified his demands, heard the friends of the trusts, compromised, virtually surrendered to them and the Sun congratulated him. It was speaking for the trusts.

There are other papers which substantially agree with the Sun that the proposed legislation is a failure, but they do not congratulate Mr. Roosevelt or the Republican leaders on it; on the contrary they denounce the fake. They speak for the people, whom these leaders have been trying to humbug with their fraudulent so-called anti-trust legislation.

The New York Herald is an independent paper, which speaks for no party, but for or against any or all, according to circumstances and the acts of these parties. It is one of the papers which believes the trusts ought to be held under legal restraint and that the Republican representatives should have kept those anti-election pledges and their faith with the people, and thus voices its disappointment and condemnation:

> Are the gentlemen who assemble daily in the Capitol at Washington fools? Or do not they think the American people are fools?
>
> To one question or the other an affirmative reply must be made by every citizen who notes the course that is pursued with respect to anti-trust" legislation.
>
> As the result of many months of speech making, agitation, debate and legislation, what has been accomplished? Congress has passed the Elkins bill re-enacting a portion of the Interstate Commerce act—which has been on the statute books for fifteen years—and created in the new Department of Commerce and Labor a bureau having authority to investigate corporations and make public so much of what it learns "as the President may direct."
>
> In his speeches last autumn Mr. Roosevelt dwelt with special emphasis upon enforced publicity as a cure for many evils, and as the first and necessary step toward intelligent action for restraining the abuses of greedy and unscrupulous combinations. Fairly capitalized and honestly managed corporations do not fear the light, and some of the industrial combinations voluntarily issue statements showing their operations and financial condition.
>
> On all sides it was agreed that whatever else should be done or left undone in the way of regulating the trusts, some measure for letting the light into all dark places should be enacted this winter. Even the most cautious and timid souls who feared that drastic restrictions might interfere with our industrial prosperity were unanimous in demanding publicity. As Attorney General Knox pointed out, many of the most flagrant trust evils have their origin in overcapitalization, and it was agreed that publicity should be given to the relation between capital assets and that there should be periodic publication of income statements and balance sheets so that investors and consumors might know the financial condition and operations of these giant combinations.
>
> It is a fact that legislation for enforcing publicity is what the furtive species of trust most fears. Why? Because it is practicable and can readily be enforced. High sounding prescriptions and interdictions with dreadful penalties they are less afraid of, because experience under the Sherman act and the anti-trust laws of the several States has shown that it is difficult to obtain legal proof that they have done the forbidden things. But a law requiring the periodic filing and filing of itemized blanks, with the affidavit of responsible officials, and giving the essential facts as to the financial condition and results of operation, would be simple, direct and rather difficult to juggle with. Trusts that work evil were anxious indeed to prevent such legislation as this. And it seems they have succeeded.
>
> See what has been done. On the first day of the session Mr. Littlefield introduced a bill which provided that "every corporation engaged in interstate commerce" should every year file just such a statement as above described—income statement, balance sheet and full information. It was referred to the Committee on Judiciary. From time to time it was intimated that the bill was being perfected with the aid of advice from Attorney General Knox and would embody the President's views. After two months it came out of the committee room in the shape in which in which it passed the House the House the other day, being made to apply only to corporations "hereafter to be organized." In other words, any one bold enough to compete with the existing mighty combinations is to be pilloried for their benefit! After that it is scarcely worth while to discuss the rest of the bill, but it lodges dangerous private inquisitorial powers in the commission to harass the possible competitors, not at all for the information of the public—all the publicity enjoined is the year'y issue of "a list" of corporations with "an abstract" of their formal returns.
>
> The value of this is obvious, since the returns even in full, made to the commission call for copies of articles of incorporation and similar information that is now of public record, but includes neither income statement, nor balance sheet, nor one iota of information as to operations, earnings or financial condition. It is just such a bill as the worst class of trust would probably have framed themselves had the work been entrusted to them with a view to their own protection and the prevention of any infringement on their monopoly. Last stage in "this strange, eventful history" of this burlesque House bill was yesterday reported to the Senate from its Committee on Judiciary with amendments making it apply to corporations now in existence and imposing severe penalties, but no provision for that simple publicity which was admitted to be "the first step toward the remedy of trust abuses." And, meanwhile, the trusts' organs and henchmen, with scarcely concealed grins, keep up a terrible charivari about the frightful "drastic" character of the "trust busting" legislation.
>
> What a performance! Clap trap and stage thunder from first to last. We don't really believe that the men in Congress are embeciles—neither are the people.

The mountain labored and brought forth a mouse. That is about the size of it. They have, to make it appear that they were in earnest and thus humbug the people, made much pretence of curbing the trusts and after much labor have given us enactments, some of which were already on the statutes, have brought forth the mouse, and a very little mouse, too, or rather little mice, for there were three of them—the Elkins bill, the publicity bill and the Knox measure to enable the Department of Justice to follow up the violators of the Sherman law and promote the speedy prosecution of the cases in the courts.

But all this isn't troubling the trust people much, for they are in this country like Daniel O'Connell's "coach and four," which could drive through any law that Parliament of England might pass.

All the time they were talking about curbing the trusts not one of them ever thought of trying the effect of reducing the tariff on trust controlled articles, nor would they listen to a suggestion of that kind. That would have been a powerful help in curbing the trusts by depriving them of the monopoly of the home markets, but that would look too much like business and hence they let that alone and confined themselves to a few make-believe measures, which the Herald pertinently characterizes as "clap-trap and storage thunder," which will not fool many people, and are not giving the trusts much concern.

REPUDIATED BY REPUBLICANS.

A meeting of a Republican club at Newport News, Va., Friday night, was addressed by a nephew of John S. Wise, and by Hon. Harry K. Walcott, another prominent Republican, both of whom repudiated the incendiary utterances of John S. Wise and the policy of President Roosevelt as to the negro. Their repudiation was applauded by the Republicans to whom they talked. These men were not talking for themselves only but for the white Republicans of Virginia, and there is little doubt that they would be endorsed by an overwhelming majority of the white Republicans of the South, whether they are known as "lily whites" or not.

We have never yet met a Southern white Republican who would admit that the negro should be put upon the same plain with him as an aspirant for public position. If he were to admit it and pretended to speak for his fellow Republicans, their practice would give the lie to his admission, for they have never treated the negro as their political equal in anything save casting a ballot, and they did that only because the negro's ballot went for them. Long before there was talk of drawing the color line in the Republican party it was drawn. The drawing of it by Senator Pritchard and others was simply a public announcement of what had been for years the invariable practice.

The impression that John S. Wise and others with whom he is acting would convey is that the movement against unlimited suffrage for the negro is supported only by the Democrats of the South, and that, therefore, it is simply a political movement intended to make the Democratic party in the South irresistible and give it permanent control of the Southern States. Whether that be the motive or not a large majority of the white Republicans in the South agree with them in it, and agree with the two speakers alluded to above in their condemnation and repudiation of John S. Wise's insane talk and of Roosevelt's scheming negro equality policy

A year or so ago an old fellow died in the poor house at Duluth and left 160 acres of land that nobody knew he owned, and that he apparently forgot. Before he died a rich deposit of iron ore was found on it, but he died without knowing that. It is estimated to be worth from $1,000,000 to $5,000,000. Lots of "heirs" turned up, and among them two "widows." But these were all turned down, and the right heirs were recently found in five Bohemian peasants living on the border of Moravia, in the Austria-Hungarian empire. All some people have to do is to jog along and fortune comes right to them.

THERE IS MERIT IN THIS.

The representative in the Legislature from Anson county has introduced a somewhat novel bill, which provides for the voluntary working on the roads or other public works of prisoners confined in the jails awaiting trial. It does not compel the prisoner to work, but leaves it optional with him, provides for his proper guarding and for clothes to distinguish him but different from those worn by convicts. Volunteering to work is not to be construed as a confession of guilt, and if convicted the number of days he works are to be counted as constituting part of the time to which he is sentenced.

This is a novel bill but there is merit in it, for it would relieve the congestion of our jails, which sometimes become crowded, and it would give the prisoners outdoor exercise, which would be much better for them than close confinement in cramped quarters. There would also be compensation to the counties for the cost of feeding, which amounts to a considerable item when there are many prisoners.

But the bill as far we have seen does not provide for any compensation to prisoners who on trial may be acquitted. It has always seemed to us an injustice to a prisoner accused of crime, who may be innocent, to keep him locked up sometimes for many months and be turned loose without any redress or compensation for incarceration or loss of time when sometimes the prisoner so held may have a family dependent upon him It, therefore, seems to us that the bill introduced by the representative from Anson should provide that when a prisoner is acquitted of the charge against him he be allowed compensation by the county for the time he worked, so much per diem, deducting the cost of feeding. This would not amount to a heavy tax on the county, for which it had received an equivalent in work, but would be justice to the innocent prisoner.

A Pittsburg minister deplores the fact that ministerial disputants, who engage in verbal discussions, do not treat each other as courteously as do the pugilistic fraternity, who always shake hands before and after fisticuffs, and harbor no resentments, no matter how hard the mutual punching may be. But then the ministerial combatants don't go out, as the pugilists do, with a pocket full of ring money to keep them in good humor.

Secretary Root wants to have the public schools in Washington equipped with rifles and ammunition so that the boys can practice shooting at targets during recess. If this pans out he may follow it up by recommending the establishment by the government of shooting galleries in our towns. That would be a daisy thing for the boys.

A Pennsylvania school board has decided that spanking is an aid to education, but the teacher must not strike the pupil on the head or the mouth. The teacher who would spank a pupil on the head or mouth should be summarily bounced as an incompetent spanker, utterly deficient in the first rudiments of the spanking art.

CURRENT COMMENT

—It might reasonably have been supposed that John S. Wise would have nursed his political dyspepsia a long time before he let it put him in the Nat Turner class.—Norfolk Ledger, Dem.

—It seems that under the law the individual who tried to murder the six people at the Birch break fast table can only be punished with imprisonment for five years at most. This is precisely the sentence which a negro received last week for stealing potatoes. The law is in many respects a fearful and wonderful science.—Louisville Courier Journal, Dem.

—The Senators and members who got the Rockefeller dispatches, says the Chattanooga Times, were scared to a dumb standstill by the explosion that followed the publication of the facts. Yet the incident, it is safe to say, was by no means an exceptional one, save for the accidental discovery and publication of the facts. Mr. Rockefeller was not walking on unfamiliar ground.—Charleston News and Courier, Dem.

—One of the best things done yet at Montgomery, says the Tuscaloosa Gazette, was the passing of the bill appropriating $20,500 for the Industrial School for Boys, and providing a per capita of $110 for the support of the boys. There was only one dissenting voice, Mr. Davis saying plenty of boys were raised in his community on less. The amount of the appropriation is considerable, but it comes from the convict fund, and as it is to train boys and reform them it will be money well spent.—Mobile Register, Dem.

This coal is in great demand, much of it being used by plants in this State. —— It is claimed that people from the North who settled in Moore during the past ten years have added a fourth to the taxable value of all property in the county. We are told that such is the estimate made by the sheriff. One would be surprised to know how many Northern people have permanently settled in the county. They have built up the towns of South ern Pines, Pinehurst and Pinebluff There are also Northern people living in about all the other towns in the county.

DR. PIERCE'S GOLDEN MEDICAL DISCOVERY FOR THE BLOOD, LIVER, LUNGS.

On The Gentle Art of Forgiving.

W. D. NESBIT.

How good we feel when we forgive
Another, who has done some wrong!
It thrills us like the cadences
Of some joy laden, lifting song.
We feel the true nobility
Of gentleness; of how to live;
We mark his thankfulness with pride
When we forgive.

To know that we may rise above
The pettiness of rage and hate
And wipe away all trace of hurt
Is something fine, and something great.
To let our deep resentment flow
Like heedless water through a sieve—
It makes the better men of us
When we forgive.

To clasp hands with the erring one
And vow that what is past is past
Will coax the sun of gladness out
Where now the sky is overcast.
Ah! Life is happy, after all,
And more than worth the while to live.
We always realize our good
When we forgive.

We understand the weakness of
The other man; and so at length
We come to grasp the wondrousness
Of our transcendent moral strength.
When we forgive we only learn
Our better part, and do not see
That we are being kind to one
As bad as we!

Va., says: "I had to go around trying to evade pain constantly, aware that a false step, jerk or twist would bring punishment, and I was afraid to handle anything for fear of a reminder in the shape of a twinge of pain. I trade at Dr. J. N. Murdoch's drug store on Third street, and have something to get in the drug line every time I come in. It was there I learned about Doan's Kidney Pills and I took a supply home with me and used them. My wife used them and my sister Mrs. A. Amick, of No. 645 Seventh street, used them. They cured the three of us. I am here in the city every few days and can substantiate the remarks I have made."

Shakespeare and Moliere.

A correspondent finds these notable points of resemblance in the careers of Shakespeare and Moliere:

The father of each was in trade and apparently destined his son to follow his occupation. The early education of both was neglected, and we know nothing in their after training that conferred on them their perfect knowledge of good breeding and distinguished manners. Neither of them was happily married. Each became manager, author, actor. Each produced a considerable number of authenticated dramatic works. Each was careless about publishing his works, or, rather, objected to do so lest they should be acted by rival dramatic companies. Plays of each were collected by actors and first published in a complete form after the death of the authors.

Each touched up or produced plays that are lost or of doubtful origin. Each disregarded novelty of plot, borrowing from various sources. Each disliked his profession. The personal character of each was gentle, kind, generous. Each had a profound knowledge of human nature. Each preferred the idea or matter to the comparative disregard of the manner. Each had a remarkable fecundity and fertility of production. Each died at the age of fifty-two.

The Weather Man's Perquisites.

"I have just served sixteen subpœnas on Uncle Sam's weather man," said a process server at the county courthouse the other day, "and handed him sixteen half dollars to legalize the command that he appear to give evidence in that many cases and $16 to enforce the direction that he bring the weather records along.

"Do you know, he is much in demand as a witness? There are hundreds of cases, especially in the accident and negligence actions in the city court, in which it is necessary to prove what was the state of the weather at the time of the accident, and obviously the man to give that information to the jury is the observer of the local weather station, for he has the records made at the time to show indisputably whether it was raining or whether the sun was shining.

"Sometimes this duty keeps the weather man on the jump. I have known him to give testimony in six or eight cases in a day and to earn witness fees far in excess of his salary. I presume these fees are his perquisites, and I know that the lump sum in a year is a handsome amount."—New York Times.

The Plymouth Rock.

A schoolteacher in one of the charming rural suburbs of Philadelphia, where fancy gardening and the raising of "Philadelphia fowl" are general among the residents, recited to the class the story of the landing of the pilgrims, and, as the children had been taking up the work, she requested each scholar to try to draw from the imagination a picture of the Plymouth rock. Then it was that the little fellow got up and raised his hand.

"Well, Willie, what is it?" asked the teacher.

"Please, ma'am, do you want a hen or a rooster drawn?" came the unexpected reply.

Musical Snails.

A French naturalist claims that there are few if any animals which have a higher appreciation of music than snails. Place some snails on a pane of glass, he says, and you will find that as they move over it they will make musical sounds similar to those which a person can produce by wetting his finger and then rubbing it around a glass tumbler. Complete airs, he points out, have been played on tumblers in this way, and he expresses the opinion that quite as good results can be obtained by using snails instead of fingers.

Our Republic.

The American republic must live. Popular commotion and partisan fury may dash their mad waves against it, but they shall roll back shattered, spent. Persecution shall not shake it, fanaticism distort it nor revolution change it, but it shall stand towering sublime, like the last mountain in the deluge, while the earth rocks at its feet and the thunders peal above its head—majestic, immutable, magnificent.—Wendell Phillips.

COTTON MARKETS.

By Telegraph to the Morning Star.

NEW YORK, Feb. 21.—The cotton market opened steady with prices unchanged to four points lower and ruled less active and generally easier under liquidation of outside long accounts, and in the face of some evidence of clique support. Cables were decidedly better than expected and were attributed to support from this side. At New York trading was chiefly for the purpose of evening-up outstanding accounts in view of Monday's holiday and a natural disinclination to have open accounts with the market more or less dominated by manipulation. Houses with European connections bought cotton in a small way while commission houses bought July. The movement of cotton at the ports to-day is officially estimated at 23,000 bales against 21 136 last week and 19,893 of last year. Wall street parties appeared to be selling May and July contracts again to-day. There was a little selling for short account this morning on the ground that the spot cotton markets of the country and the cotton goods market have not made a satisfactory response to the advance in futures.

NEW YORK, Feb. 21.—Cotton quiet at 10.05; net receipts 1,033 bales; gross receipts 3,943 bales; stock 134,513 bales

Spot cotton closed quiet; middling uplands 10.05c; middling gulf 10.30c, sales 66 bales.

UNMASKING DARRO

By Ewan Macpherson

Copyright, 1902,
By the S. S. McClure Company

When Buxton, the English correspondent, called that evening on Miss Blanche Kershaw, for the fifth time in four days, he found Darro sitting with her.

The two men were introduced, and almost the first thing Buxton said was, "I suppose you spell your name like the Derreus at home—'the dauntless Derreus,' they're called in my county—D-e-r-r-e-u."

It was dark, and the three were gathered on the porch of the Kershaw residence, where no artificial light served to reveal the breadth of the smile with which Miss Kershaw greeted this remark. Darro was a rather undersized man, with eyeglasses, extensive college antecedents and decided literary tastes, so far as his conversation might indicate.

"I certainly do not," he said in his habitual weary drawl. "Life is too short. I spell my name just as it is pronounced—D-a-r-r-o—and I am far from dauntless."

"By Jove, how odd!" said Buxton. "I was rather in hopes you might turn out to be a cousin of the Derreus of Derreuly Manor. I was born in that neighborhood myself; name's pronounced exactly like yours. And there's an old rhyme dating from goodness knows when:

"Brand nor halbert, lance nor arrow,
Checketh charge of dauntless Derreu."

"Then I'm quite sure I can't be of kin," Darro persisted. "I'm afraid of everything, from Mausers to mice."

The hostess laughed.

"At least you ought to be ashamed to make such a confession to a Britisher, Mr. Darro. Think of our national reputation."

"I do. I think it brutal. Physical courage, if it ever was a desirable quality, lost all its recommendations centuries ago."

"By Jove!" Buxton exclaimed. "You must pardon me if I seem a little unprepared for all this. You know I was a correspondent with your army at Santiago."

"That was where you met our forceful friend Wickley," said Darro.

"To whom I owe the delightful privilege of Miss Kershaw's acquaintance."

"You have every reason to be grateful to Wickley; but, for all that, I consider him an American of an objectional type."

All of this Miss Kershaw seemed to be enjoying in a quiet way. Then they talked of other things till Darro left them.

"That's a most interesting double enigma," said Buxton, "an American and a Darro, you know."

"I hope you'll stay with us until you find a solution of him. Mr. Darro's ambition to be thought timid is notorious here."

"Isn't it a very singular ambition?"

"Very. That may be the solution of the enigma."

A pause, and then Buxton mustered up courage to ask, "Miss Kershaw, you couldn't—ah—feel interested in a man like that?"

"I don't know. Brave men are so common with us, and, you know, I rather like exotics."

Buxton hardly enjoyed the suspicion that this girl found him interesting as a rarity and that she valued the timid Darro proportionately higher as he was the rarer. Then, again, he felt chilled at the thought that she could possibly entertain a degenerate taste for cowards.

Buxton's sojourn in the place was uncertain. A wire from his chief in London might any day send him on to San Francisco or back to New York, so he made up his mind to ask Wickley about it that very night.

This was easy enough, for they occupied rooms in the same hotel, but hard on Wickley, who had just fallen asleep when the Englishman's knock caused him to dream that the place was on fire. The interview was unsatisfactory to both parties, Buxton only obtaining the assurance that Darro was a crank, with a forcible recommendation to go for further information either to the man himself or to the father of all lies, while Wickley fell asleep again with the vague idea that the correspondent was preparing an article on "The American Coward."

So it came about that Darro, on his way to his uncle's law office, was hailed by Wickley.

"Say, Darro, you want to let up on that timidity poppycock of yours. All very well to give home folks that old song, but don't try it on an English newspaper correspondent."

"I suppose you mean Buxton. Has he already told you of our conversation last night?"

"Told me! He may have told it to all the English newspapers by this time. He woke me up at midnight to ask me if it were true."

For a moment Darro looked pale enough for his favorite part.

"Did he tell you where we met?"

"I suppose it was at Blanche Kershaw's. He seems smitten in that quarter, and I know he was going there last night."

Darro managed to recover his meek pose. "You know, Wickley, I don't think much of physical courage"—

"All right, then. I only hope Buxton will mention your name in his story. We don't want the whole city to get that sort of reputation."

Darro was disturbed. His uncle noised it when he entered the office and demanded the cause.

"There's an Englishman here"—

Before he could finish the door of the outer office opened, and Buxton, fresh and cheerful, entered. Darro was with him in a moment, showing a most abnormal eagerness for the meeting.

"Oh, here you are!" said Buxton. "You'll pardon my coming here during business hours, won't you? I've got to start for California this evening—wire from London just reached me—but before I go I want you to tell me (we English newspaper men like to be accurate and full) where you were during the Spanish war."

"I was in the law school of a western university when the war began," said Darro.

"Michigan, eh? Thanks. Enlisted in the Michigan volunteers under the name of Dobbs. Remember the day you sneaked out from under cover and brought in that wounded boy when the sharpshooters were swarming in the mango trees?"

Judge Mason was by this time an attentive listener to the conversation. The office boy also listened and gaped.

"My name is Darro, Mr. Buxton," said the pattern of peacefulness, struggling with himself.

"It used to be Dobbs in 1898, just for a few weeks. It will make an awfully pretty story for my paper. Odd I didn't begin to think of the resemblance until"—

"You're not going to put my name in the paper?"

"Story won't be any good without it. 'Brand nor halbert' "—

Before the Englishman could repeat any more of the ancient rhyme Darro had him by the throat. It might have ended in strangulation had not the others interfered.

"Oh, the whole thing is clear now beyond the shadow of a doubt," said Buxton when he was saying goodby to Blanche Kershaw that afternoon. "First I began to think of the likeness last night lying awake. When I saw him this morning, it was palpable. Then when he flew at my throat—doesn't weigh as much as I by thirty pounds—why, that settled it."

"For you, I dare say," said Blanche. "For me there was nothing to settle."

"You never believed all that talk of his?"

"Of course not. Still I, all of us, ought to be very grateful to you for unmasking him."

"And what do I get?" the Englishman asked.

"My sincere thanks. Sorry I have nothing better to offer."

"The exposed impostor gets the higher reward? Is that justice?"

"I don't know. Bon voyage!"

Scott Enjoyed Being Lionized.

Sir Walter Scott is an example of a great man who, so far as we can judge, enjoyed paying the penalties of his greatness even in his hour of death. He was great enough, but then he was that kind of a man, and the circumstances among which he lived were favorable. That was before the day of the penny post, of the electric telegraph, of railways and of the interviewer, and in his prime he lived at Abbotsford, which is equivalent nowadays to saying that he lived at Joppa. He seems to have been singularly free from the penalties of greatness, which have enormously increased since the Wizard of the North went home, and such of them as came in his way he seems to have heartily enjoyed.

He appears now and then to have relished being turned into a rare show and to being pointed at wherever he went as Walter Scott. Indeed this being pointed at seems to have been relished by many men whose greatness was undoubted. Thackeray seems sometimes almost to have resented not being pointed at.—All the Year Round.

The Strawberry.

Though history and story are alike silent as to the cultivation of the strawberry in early times, we know that the fruit was well known in England in the fifteenth century. Shakespeare has three allusions to strawberries. In "Henry V." the Bishop of Ely, in illustration of the good qualities which the young king possessed, in spite of his wild habits and objectionable companions, says:

The strawberry grows underneath the nettle
And wholesome berries thrive and ripen best
Neighbored by fruit of baser quality.

The reference here is obviously to the wild berry. But in the play of "Richard III." strawberries are spoken of as growing in the bishop of Ely's garden at Holborn, and this seems to show that the berry was cultivated with considerable care as early as the latter part of the fifteenth century, though Haydn's "Dictionary of Dates" asserts that the common strawberry was brought to England from Flanders in 1530.

Better Than Gold.

"I was troubled for several years with chronic indigestion and nervous debility," writes F. J. Green, of Lancaster, N. H. "No remedy helped me until I began using Electric Bitters, which did me more good than all the medicine I ever used. They have also kept my wife in excellent health for years. She says Electric Bitters are just splendid for female troubles; that they are a grand tonic and invigorator for weak, run-down woman. No other medicine can take its place in our family." Try them. TO THE PUBLIC!

Having had a total loss by fire, of my entire stock of goods on the morning of February 11th, and the destruction of the building as well, I have opened my office at No. 113 North Front street, formerly occupied by The Murchison National Bank. Desirous of adjusting all my claims, I'll ask those indebted to me for the prompt payment of their accounts. This is absolutely necessary in order that I may again resume business. Thanking a generous public for past patronage, I am respectfully,

SUNDAY MORNING, FEBRUARY 22.

THE ROCKEFELLER INSTITUTE

Scheme for an Institution in New York That Will Be Unexcelled in Any Country in the World.

By Telegraph to the Morning Star.

NEW YORK, February 21.—Dr. T. Emmett Holt, secretary of the board of directors of the Rockefeller Institute, made public to-night the detailed plans of the project so far as they have been determined. These plans embrace a scheme for an institution of medical and pathological research, which it is said will be without equal in this country and unexcelled in any country in the world. The gifts of John D. Rockefeller to the institute thus far, aggregating $1,200,000, are considered merely a beginning, and the understanding is that Mr. Rockefeller stands ready to finance the institution for any amount necessary to carry out the work. The institute will occupy four city blocks between the East river and Avenue "A," and Sixtieth and Sixty-fourth streets.

Dr. Holt says that John D. Rockefeller, Jr., also is interested with his father in the plan, but denies that the institution is intended as memorial to the elder Rockefeller's grandson "Jack" McCormick, who died a year and a half ago. The gifts of $1,200,000 were made by Mr. Rockefeller in 1901.

BISHOP TRIAL AT CHARLOTTE.

Much Interest in the Case Locally—How the Jury Stands.

The utmost interest is being manifested locally in the result of the Bishop trial at Charlotte, which is still in the hands of the jury, according to the STAR'S telegraphic advices this morning. A special correspondent writing of the probable verdict in the case says:

"There is every evidence that the Bishop trial will result in a mistrial. In fact your correspondent was informed to-night that the jurors are hopelessly divided, and there is no chance of reconciling the wide division that exists.

"So far as can be learned the jury stands three for murder in the second degree, six for manslaughter and three for excusable homicide. The latter simply means that the three jurors think his actions were in self-defence.

"Judge Neal was informed to-night that the jury was ready to report that it could not agree. He notified the deputy sheriff in charge that it was his desire that the jury be held together in order that a verdict might be reported."

N. Y. SOUTHERN SOCIETY.

Seven Hundred Guests at the Dinner Last Night.

By Telegraph to the Morning Star.

NEW YORK, Feb. 21.—Members of the New York Southern Society and their guests to the number of nearly seven hundred gathered to-night at the seventeenth annual dinner of the Society in the banquet hall of the Waldorf Astoria. The boxes were filled with a brilliant assemblage of the wives and daughters of members of the Society and their friends. President Augustus J. VanWyck presided and at his table were seated J. C. McKnight, of the Charleston Society; J. Edward Graybill, of the Georgia Society; David H. Bates, of the Ohio Society; W. W. Fuller, of the Society of North Carolina; Edward C. Stedman, of the New York Society; Justice Martin J. Keogh; A. C. Braxton, Dr. J. H. Van Amringe, of Columbia, S. C.; J. Drummond, Major Edward Owen and Rev. Dr. P. A. H. A FATAL AFFRAY.

Deputy U. S. Marshal Killed and Another Man Dangerously Wounded.

By Telegraph to the Morning Star.

EUREKA SPRINGS, ARK., Feb. 21.—In a pistol duel on the streets of Jasper, Newton county, to-day, Deputy United States Marshal J. D. Keys was killed and W. A. Shudson was dangerously wounded. Shudson, who is a resident of Jasper, was discharging a pistol on the streets, when Keys and City Marshal William Allen attempted to arrest him. He opened fire on Allen, who returned the fire, shooting Shudson through the body. Allen, though uninjured, dropped to the ground. Shudson then fired at Keys, shooting him through the body. Keys walked several blocks to his home and died a few hours later.

A Man, His Wife and Two Daughters Arrested Near Winchester, Va.

By Telegraph to the Morning Star.

RICHMOND, VA., Feb. 21.—As the result of two mysterious fires, a man, his wife and two unmarried daughters and four other men were arrested at Middletown, near Winchester, late last night, charged with arson and were jailed at Winchester to-day, after being given a hearing before a magistrate. The persons in custody have all hitherto been respectable people. The married woman of the party is a sister of the sheriff who made the arrest.

William Elliott Maher, a freshman in the engineering department of Cornell University, died late last night; the tenth student to fall a victim to typhoid fever.

CONTINUATION OF SENATE TANGLE.

Colombian Canal Treaty Taken Up and Discussed Again in Executive Session.

THE STATEHOOD COMPROMISE

Arrangement That is Expected to Remove the Deadlock—Proposes to Admit Two States—Position of Democratic Senators a Feature

By Telegraph to the Morning Star.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 21.—The Senate spent nearly the entire day in executive session. It was the legislative day of Thursday, as the Senate had taken recess instead of adjourning. The Senate met at 11 o'clock, opened the doors at 12 and for more than an hour disposed of routine business.

Upon resuming the executive session, the Colombian canal treaty was taken up. Senator Quay had a report read on isthmian canal matters. The reading of the report sent up by Mr. Quay consumed about three hours of time, and after this was concluded Mr. Pettus made a brief speech, directed principally at what he termed the repeal of the Spooner act by the treaty. He contended that as a legal proposition the appropriation made by the Spooner law for the purpose of securing "perpetual control" of the canal would not be available under the treaty providing merely for a lease of the canal strip. He also said that the American people would not be satisfied with anything less than a thoroughly American canal; one which could be defended by us at all times, which the Panama canal could not be under the terms of the treaty.

Senator Platt, of Connecticut, took issue with Senator Pettus, as to the effect of the treaty, saying that he believed there were no legal obstacles in the treaty to the acquisition by the President of the canal zone, but he contended that if there were any such obstacles they could be removed by another act of Congress, reappropriating the money.

During the day Senator Morgan secured consent to the removal of the injunction of secrecy from the amendments to the treaty which have been offered by him. Most of the important amendments have already been given publicity, but he offered two new ones to-day. One of these provides for an agreement between the contracting parties that nothing contained in the treaty shall be construed to alter the terms of the Spooner act. The other amendment is as follows:

"It is agreed that in respect for the rights of citizens of the United States under the constitution and for the present humane state of the Christian religion, in which the ordinances and proscriptions of the Spanish inquisition have no place or tolerance, that the provisions of the Concordat of 1888, between his holiness Pope Leo XIII and the government of Colombia, and the laws enacted by Colombia, or that shall be hereafter enacted, in furtherance or execution of said Concordat, shall not apply to any citizen of the United States in Colombia, or to any person who shall be in the service of the United States, or to any officer, agent or servant of the United States who is in any way engaged in the construction or operation of a canal or the Panama railroad, under the provisions of this treaty."

The executive session closed and the Senate adjourned at 5 o'clock, Senator Cullom giving notice that he would move again on Monday to continue the executive sessions for the consideration of the treaty.

The Statehood Compromise.

The Statehood compromise, which is expected to unlock the present tangle in the Senate and remove the blockade, proposes to admit two States, one to be Oklahoma according to its present boundaries, with a proviso that Indian Territory shall be added to Oklahoma in 1906, when the treaty obligations with the Indians will not be in the way. The other State is to be composed of New Mexico and Arizona, under the name of Montezuma, with a promise that when the present territory of Arizona has a population of 300,000 people it shall become a separate State, providing that the people of the territory affected vote in favor of being divided from Montezuma or New Mexico.

The Republican leaders conferred all day upon the subject of the Statehood compromise, and most of the Democrats were informed of the general terms of the proposition. To all questions as to whether they would accept such a compromise, they said that they wanted to see a definite proposition and know from whom it came; then they would be in a position to confer and decide.

On the Republican side, it is found that two Republican senators—Beveridge and Nelson—both members of the Committee on Territories, are very loth to accept any compromise save that which the majority originally presented. Their position is that the Omnibus bill is defeated, and that Senator Quay, who has been so persistently pressing it, has lost strength by his course in supporting Senator Morgan during the latter's fight against the canal treaty.

The Democratic position on the proposed compromise is an interesting feature of the situation, for it is generally understood that unless there is practically unanimous agreement it could not pass. Another feature of the Democratic position developed to-day was that many Democrats are indifferent as to an extra legislative session of Congress, while some think it would not be bad party politics to have such a session and have the subject of trust legislation and revision of the tariff discussed. This idea was communicated to some of the Republican leaders to-day and caused considerable uneasiness. It is realized that with the business now pending in the Senate, a very few men could force enough appropriation bills over to cause an extra session of the 58th Congress.

House of Representatives.

The day in the House was devoted to debate upon the Fowler Currency bill. Mr. Fowler, the author of the measure, spoke for over two hours. The general conviction that the bill has no chance to become a law and the fact that there are divergent views on both sides of the House detracted from the interest in the debate.

While Mr. Thayer was explaining the features and advantages of the minority bill, Mr. Cochran, of Missouri, objected to the appellation "minority bill." "There is no minority bill," he said, "the bill you are supporting will not command ten votes on this (the Democratic) side."

Mr. Thayer replied that the bill he was advocating was the one introduced by Mr. Padgett, of Tennessee.

A communication from the President transmitting a request of the anthracite coal strike commission, asking for authority to publish 5,000 copies of its report when completed, was laid before the House. The message of the President said he concurred in the request.

The House adjourned until Monday.

THE PANAMA CANAL COMPANY

Officials Maintain Rigid Reserve Concerning Their Plans—German Interest in the Canal Project Increasing.

By Cable to the Morning Star.

PARIS, Feb. 21.—The officials of the Panama Canal Company are maintaining a rigid reserve concerning their plans. One of the chief officers said it was considered of the utmost importance, owing to the delicate stage of the negotiations, not to throw anything into the discussion which might unfavorably affect the results.

At the company's headquarters great activity has been shown since the receipt of the advices from Attorney General Knox accepting the company's offer for the sale of its property, subject to the ratification of the United States Senate. Persons in a position to know the course of the negotiations do not consider the attitude of the company antagonistic to the position of the United States. In American quarters having exceptional means of obtaining information it is believed that recent developments confirm the reports of German interest in the canal project. One of the leading officers of a French financial institution recently made it known to an American official that the private German investments in Panama securities were assuming significant proportions. It was distinctly stated in this connection that the German government is entirely unconnected with the movement, although the names of important personages in the imperial government are mentioned among those who have become recent private investors. But the view prevails among Americans here that such a foreign movement will be futile, as the officials are strongly confident that the present obstacles to the negotiations will be overcome.

HOMICIDE AT HAMLET.

J. H. Williamson, of Monroe, Shot and Killed in a Bar-room by Henry Young, of Rockingham—He Escaped.

By Telegraph to the Morning Star.

RALEIGH, N. C., Feb. 21.—J. H. Williamson, a well known druggist, whose home is in Monroe, this State, was shot and killed by Henry Young, of Rockingham, N. C., in Aurmon's bar at Hamlet, last night. Williamson and a friend went into the saloon for drinks. A dispute arose with Young who cursed Williamson's friend. Williamson asked Young to desist and Young, turning, pulled his gun and fired, inflicting a wound from which Williamson died in thirty minutes. Young then fired two shots at the bar-keeper who was trying to stop the shooting, but the bullets went wild. Young then fled and made good his escape.

THE NEWARK ACCIDENT.

Memorial Services in All Churches to Be Held To-day.

By Telegraph to the Morning Star.

NEWARK, N. J., Feb. 21.—The coroner and a jury today viewed the remains of Ernestine Miller, one of the victims of the trolley wreck, and then adjourned to meet next Wednesday, when the taking of testimony will be commenced.

Tomorrow memorial services will be held in all the churches here. Throughout the city flags flew at half staff today. The funerals of a number of the victims took place today.

CORNER-STONE OF WAR COLLEGE LAID

In the Presence of a Large Assemblage of Distinguished People.

WITH IMPRESSIVE CEREMONY.

A Military Parade—Masonic Observances. Addresses by President Roosevelt, Secretary of War Root and General Young

By Telegraph to the Morning Star.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 21.—In the presence of an assemblage of distinguished people, including the President of the United States, members of the cabinet and of Congress, justices of the Supreme Court, representatives of foreign powers, and others eminent in the life of the nation, the cornerstone of the Army War College was laid here to-day with impressive military and masonic ceremonies.

The occasion was rendered especially notable and interesting by addresses delivered by President Roosevelt, Secretary of War Root and Major General S. B. M. Young, president of the War College. The site selected for the new building is on the reservation of the Washington barracks, at the foot of Four-and a-half street. To-day's ceremonies marked the beginning of a project which has been fostered by the President, Secretary Root and others interested in the advancement and thorough training of the United States army.

A picturesque feature of the ceremonies to-day was the participation of the military. About 1,000 troops, representing the various branches of the war service, took part in the exercises.

President Roosevelt, accompanied by his military aide, Colonel Theodore A. Bingham, left the White House in a carriage at 11 o'clock. He was escorted to the war college grounds by Troop E of the Third cavalry. In other carriages members of the cabinet, accompanied the President. Two non-commissioned officers, both skilled horsemen, rode on each side of the President's carriage to control the horses in case they were frightened by the firing of salutes or otherwise, and two privates were detailed to each of the other carriages as a precaution against accidents. The President was received at the grounds with military honors.

The incident to the laying of the corner-stone was impressive. The invocation was pronounced by the Rt. Rev. Henry Y. Satterlee, Bishop of Washington, the assemblage standing uncovered during the prayer.

President Roosevelt was introduced by General G. L. Gillespie, chief of engineers, United States army. The President said:

"One word first to the nation and then another word to the army. To the nation first: It has well been said that the surest way to invite national disaster is for a nation to be opulent, aggressive and unarmed. [Applause.] The nation that is rich, that is so high spirited as to be somewhat careless of giving offence and that yet refrains from that preparedness which is absolutely necessary is ineffective in actual service. Officer and man alike must be trained to the highest point in the theory and in the practice of the profession. It is of course a truism to say that if there is not in the theories good grounding in practice, they will amount to nothing; but they must have the training and the theory too. They must have that training or they can never reach the highest standard of perfection in their art. The army of the United States is small and it is not desirable that it should be other than a small army relatively to the population of the country, but we have a right to expect that that small army shall represent for its size the very highest point of efficiency of any army in the civilized world. [applause] and I have the most absolute faith that to that degree of efficiency it will attain, and that it will attain it in no small part because of the wise and zealous use it will make of the opportunities afforded by the erection of this very building." [Loud and continuous applause.]

Secretary Root then spoke, saying in part:

"Not to promote war, but to preserve peace by intelligent and adequate preparation to repel aggression, this institution is founded. It is a growth and not a new departure. It is a natural and necessary development of the views with which General Grant established the artillery school at Fortress Monroe, General Sherman established the infantry and cavalry school at Fort Leavenworth, and General Sheridan established the school of application for cavalry and light artillery at Fort Riley, and at the close of the war with Spain the growth of the separate institutions had reached a point where their efficiency could be increased and the results of their work could be utilized best by bringing them into relation as parts of a general system of military education under the inspection and supervision of a single coordinating and controlling body, and by supplementing their work with a post graduate course which should carry their best men onward along the lines of research and of thought by which experience and theory combine to the making of skilful commanders of armies. Such a system the army is now puting in force as rapidly as possible."

Major General S. B. M. Young, president of the War College, then delivered his address, and Grand Master Walker, assisted by the other officers of the Grand Lodge of Masons of the District of Columbia, then laid the corner-stone of the new building, in accordance with the impressive ritual of the Masonic fraternity.

The ceremonies were concluded by benediction pronounced by the Bishop Batterlee.

THE BISHOP CASE.

Judge Neal Still Holds the Jury—Unable to Agree on a Verdict.

By Telegraph to the Morning Star.

AT THE ACADEMY OF MUSIC.

Mabel Paige Company Closed—Further Offerings in February and March.

Last night the Mabel Paige Company closed its highly successful return engagement and the farewell performance was attended by a large audience in spite of the inopportune time—Saturday night—and the inclement weather. The company will leave for Charlotte this afternoon to play a week's engagement.

The present week will be dark at the Academy, save Saturday, when the popular farce comedy success "Hello, Bill," will be offered at matinee and night. This play has made several successful tours of the South, but Wilmington play goers have never had the pleasure of seeing it. The production this season is a splendid one, and particularly great as to the cast.

Next week "Uncle Hez" and "Sweet Clover" will be the offerings—March 3rd and 5th, respectively. The former is a well known rural drama and the latter is a piece of metropolitan reputation. In fact, "Sweet Clover" will prove one of the most elaborate theatrical treats of the season.

Died Near Ivanhoe.

Mrs. Harriet Johnson Corbett, one of the most active and useful members of Black River Presbyterian church, died at her home near Ivanhoe last Sabbath, Feb. 15th, in the 73rd year of her age. She is greatly missed and mourned in the church and community. She was left an orphan at a very early age and was reared and trained in the family of her uncle, the late Mr. Dougald McMillan, father of Wilmington's esteemed townsman, Dr. W. D. McMillan. She attended the Front Street, now the First Presbyterian church, of this city. She married Mr. William Corbett in 1859 and they had lived happily together and were lovingly called by every body "Uncle William" and "Aunt Hattie." An unmarried sister, Miss Mary Johnson, lived with them. Besides, there is another sister, Mrs. George Bannerman, and a brother, Mr. Cornelius Johnson.
